EDITORIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE SENTINEL.

MADISON, Feb. 23, '52.

Since I wrote last, my attention has been called to a paragraph stating that the Waukesha lots on which Mr. Ex Secretary Bristow and his co-adjutors loaned $350, are advertised for sale by the Sheriff. This will doubtless have the effect of testing the validity of that provision which declares that mortgages for school fund loans shall be considered of record from the time when they are given. If the provision is a valid one, all that can be said of the matter is that, although quite safe for the State, it is exceedingly unfair towards innocent persons, who are called upon for loans upon real estate since it may be that the property is incumbered to its full value, while nothing of the kind shows upon the record.

The Commercial comes to us here, always unhappy, and grumbling at a serious rate. The result of the election last fall—the remembrance of the discomfiture of the regulars by the people last summer—the rebellion of the "democracy," in favor of a new deal for delegates to the National Nominating Convention—and the signal failure of the plan concocted to unite the discordant elements of the old party, so as to cook up a grand Salmagundi of nominations——all these things seem to have unsettled its mind, and have led to the commencement and continuation of the most foolish abuse of the Governor, and the Legislature, and more particularly of the whig members from our city. The Commercial even goes so far as to accuse them of blame for the passage of the Rock River Rail Road extension &c bill, and, further, it complains that some terrible memorials for large grants of land have passed the Assembly "with their knowledge or consent." The former did pass, after various amendments and alterations, but it did not pass with their consent, and cannot pass again. As to the land grants, it is all a myth—a ghost of something that never existed—a man of straw, conjured up to frighten children——since no memorial for a grant of land has yet passed the Assembly, or, according to all probability, will pass that body. To be sure, a host of memorials, covering about all the government lands in the State, have passed the very largely "democratic" Senate, and we are inclined to think that our Milwaukee Senators both voted for them. But that is all right of course. It is the imagined doings of a merely nominal Whig Assembly that troubles the Commercial so much. If our "democratic" members would only take the opportunity to talk to the conductors of that press to their faces as they talk of it here, there would be a different tone to its articles, now and then.

Wilson—our friend Starr's efficient Deputy—famous, indefatigable "Dick Wilson," immortalized by Col. Botkin not long since, has taken occasion, during the recess, to make a general cleaning out of the Assembly Chamber, and under the instructions of the committee left in charge of the matter, to put up a stove in the lobby. The intention is to use the furnaces only in very cold weather, so that the members may be obliged to breathe the dry air from them as little as possible. There must be something wrong in the construction of the furnaces or flues, for I have never suffered the same inconveniences in other buildings heated in the same manner; and, indeed, there is no great complaint in the Senate Chamber. Mr. Donaldson's comparison of the air coming from the register into the other hall to the "deadly Sirocco of the desert" very happily illustrated the character of the atmosphere which the members and other victims have been compelled to breathe. It has been the fruitful cause of much sickness, and, I fear, of diseases of the lungs which some of the members may suffer from long after they leave Madison.

Gov. Doty has introduced in Congress, I notice, a bill for the establishment of an Agricultural Bureau. It may be too much to hope of this Congress that they will pass it at this session, since the time of the members is better employed—as they seem to think—in attending to the interests of land speculators, and in fighting the poor, miserable, lean ghost of disunion. The little squad of disunionists, north and south, who have kept up such a clatter, would never have found themselves famous, but for the efforts of such men as Senator Foote and his set. When will it cease to be the case that such men stand in the fore front of our national councils, and hide better, tho' less wise men? W. H. W.

REMOVAL OF THE CAPITAL.

From the leakings of the Milwaukee papers, as well as some of the lobby members of that city, it appears pretty evident, that the honors tendered to the legislature are not entirely free from ulterior designs. The Milwaukee Journal intimates that Madison has had more than its share of the public steadings, and from this we are led to suspect that effort is to be made to bring Milwaukee up for the lion's share by the removal of the capital to that city, which has a greater claim for stealings than any other in the State from the force of numbers engaged in the business.—Madison Dem.

The Democrat is unnecessarily exercised. There is no thought, or purpose, on the part of Milwaukee, to attempt the removal of the Capital to this city. We desire no such change, and we don't t whether any person, or any pucs in our city could be found to advocate it. If the wishes of Milwaukee are consulted, the Capitol will remain a "fixture" at Madison as long as grass grows and water runs.

It is true, doubtless, that our citizens had "ulterior designs" in the civilities tendered to our guests from Madison. Few individuals, or communities, act from entirely disinterested motives, and Milwaukee is not an exception to the rules which govern "the rest of mankind." Still, the motives which prompted the tender of public honors and hospitalities to the Members of the Legislature were not wholly selfish and may be frankly avowed. They had no reference whatever to the "removal of the capitol," nor to a division of the "stealings," nor to the punishment of the Governor "for his temerity in attacking the banks," as our contemporary of the Democrat is at pains to give all three reasons for the unusual courtesy. The whole "design" in the matter was, to show Milwaukee to such Members of the Legislature as might betrail themselves of the opportunity, afforded by the recess, to visit our city and partake of its proffered hospitality; to disabuse their minds of the impression, very industriously inculated, that our interests were diverse from those of the rest of the State; to give them tangible evidence that the Milwaukee and Mississippi Rail Road was a substantial, well-to-do enterprise, already considerably advanced and under good and gratifying progress; to prove to them that our city, in its rise and rapid progress; its enterprize, business, population and prosperity; its charities, institutions of learning, society and public spirit, was an honor and an ornament to the thrifty, growing and beautiful State in which it is located, and entitled at least to fair play and respectful consideration at the hands of our Legislative and Executive Authorities.

This was the "head and front," the sum and substance of the "designs" entertained in the matter, and we trust that our Madison contemporaries will dismiss the idle apprehensions and unworthy jealousy which the visit of our Legislators to this city seem to have excited. There ought to be none other than feelings of good will and mutual good wishes between our Capital and Commercial Emporium, and so far as our own press and people are concerned we are very sure than none other exist. As to the Members and officers of the Legislature and other officials who honored us with their presence during the past few days, we confidently believe that they will acquit our citizens of all improper "designs," in giving them a cordial welcome to Milwaukee, and that they will remember, long and pleasantly, their visit to the "City of Bricks."

RAILROAD RIDE TO EAGLE PRAIRIE.

By invitation of the Directors of the Milwaukee and Mississippi Railroad Company, the Members of the Legislature, on a visit to our city, with other guests, took a ride in the cars, on Tuesday afternoon, as far as the present terminus of the road on Eagle Prairie, 36 miles from this city.—We were so fortunate as to be one of the party, and enjoyed the trip greatly. The road was in good order, the cars roomy and comfortable, our friend, Conductor BRIDGEMAN, civil and attentive, and the iron horse Minnesota in excellent running condition. The run out to Waukesha, 21 miles, was made in 46 minutes, and after a brief stop there, to look at the spacious and substantial car-house and workshop, the train sped on to Eagle Prairie. The track from Waukesha west will compare favorably, in point of smoothness, solidity and general excellence of construction, with any Railroad we have ridden on, East or West. Abundant gravel beds, at frequent intervals along the line of the road, furnish the best of materials for the embankments and road bed, while the heavy T rail used is of good pattern, and seems proof against wear or tear. The route runs through a fertile and smiling country, which delights the eye with its beauties and satisfies the judgment as to the ultimate productiveness of the road.

At Eagle Prairie, where a temporary Depot has been constructed, a large Hotel opened, and a spacious Warehouse is under contract, we found quite an accumulation of produce awaiting transportation to Milwaukee. There were five freight cars on the track ready loaded, and enough wheat in store to fill as many more. The' dating' but a few weeks back, this freighting business already begins to pay well. The return train, Tuesday evening, brought in, besides the guests, some 50 passengers, 1200 bushels of Wheat, 75 bbls of Flour, and a number of dead hogs. The freight bill from the Eagle Prairie Station alone was $52. The evening previous, Monday, the receipts by the train from the West were $100. And this but the first beginning. The road, as yet, hardly reaches the Wheat region. With its extension to the Rock River valley will come an immediate and very great increase both in freight and travel.

Soon after 5 o'clock the excursion train, with the addition of two passenger and five freight cars, started homeward. At each station the number of passengers and the amount of freight received accessions, and by the time that the "Minnesota" had brought us safely and swiftly back to Milwaukee, the quantity of living and dead freight on the train would have made a respectable show on many an Eastern Rail Road.

It will doubtless gratify our readers, as it did us, to know that this great enterprise, in which our City has so large a stake, and Wisconsin so vital an interest, is going ahead under very promising auspices. The thirty-six miles already completed and in operation, begin to pay well. From Eagle Prairie to Whitewater the new Contractors, CHAMBERLAIN & Co., are now at work, with the determination of having that section ready for use by the first week in July.—Two months more will carry it to Milton and September or October, we do not doubt, will see the Iron horse upon the banks of the beautiful Rock. From that point onward to the Mississippi the road will build itself, giving substantial proofs of its value as an investment which the most timid capitalist will not question.

STATE FAIR.

We see by the Milwaukee and Madison papers that the Executive Committee of the State Agricultural Society have selected Milwaukee as the place of holding the next State Fair. Hope those good people who voted or talked in favor of the resolution published in our last paper in connection with the proceedings of the Executive Committee of the Milwaukee and Waukesha Society, or afterwards approved that resolution as did every editor in Milwaukee save one, will have a peaceful conscience over the matter.—Waukesha Democrat.

We did not know that "every editor save one" in Milwaukee had committed themselves on this question. So far as the Sentinel is concerned we took ground in favor of the location of the next State Fair at Milwaukee, as long ago as last September, and while we should have been glad to have seen our Waukesha friends gratified in the selection, we cannot doubt that the site finally designated by the Executive Committee was the proper one, and that the Society itself and the State at large will be greatly the gainers by it.

THIRD WARD NOMINATIONS.—The "regular" democracy of the Third ward, at their caucus yesterday afternoon, nominated the following ticket:

For Aldermen.—John Hickey (2 years), Chas. Lane, J. Reed.

For Justice.—Wm. Holland.

For Assessor.—R. G. Owens.

For Constable.—Philip Mc Gillmeddy.

Delegates to City Committee.—J. Shortell, Dan. Kennedy, A. McCormick.

FOURTH WARD TICKET.—We hear that the "democracy" of the Fourth Ward, at their caucus last night, nominated Judge CHANDLER, JAMES SAVILLE, and P. KANE, for Aldermen, HAVEN POWERS, for Justice of the Peace, J. E. FORCE, for Assessor, and J. B. WINTON, for Constable.

HEAVY FREIGHT.—We understand that the Railway train brought in last evening a heavy amount of freight—consisting of 5000 bushels of wheat, 150 barrels of flour, &c. Some of the wheat started from Rock River, yesterday morning. This shows how advantageously every mile of extension of this important chain of internal improvements brings the farmers nearer to market.—Wisconsin.

The Wisconsin sets the figures up rather too high, but the inferences are correct and worthy the notice both of Farmers and Forwarders

PUBLIC PRINTING.—The Watertown Register expresses decided approbation of Mr. DOTY's Printing Bill, and furnishes the following additional reason for the adoption of a similar plan in this State:

This plan should be adopted in our State affairs as it would result in a saving to the State for legislation, as a good portion of the time of the members is spent in trying to cheat the printer, and the printer is obliged to do the same, in self-defence.

THE "REGULARS" IN THE FIELD.—The regular "democracy" hold a Convention at the Council Room on Saturday next, at 2 o'clock P. M., to nominate candidates for City Officers. Caucuses to select Candidates for Ward Officers were held in the 2nd, 3d, 4 and 5 Wards last evening, and one is announced in the 1st Ward on Friday evening.

YOUNG MEN'S ASSOCIATION.—The new rooms of the Young Men's Association are now open for the use of Members. They are located in the brick block on the North East corner of East Water and Wisconsin Streets, entrance from Wisconsin Street, next door above Kirby's.

TRIAL FOR MURDER.—The trial now in progress in the Circuit Court attracts crowded audiences to the Court Room, and enlists very general interest. We shall publish, every morning, a full report of the proceedings of the previous day.

JOHNNY BOOKER AND THE BAILEYS.—There was another full house at Gardiner's Hall, Tuesday evening, to enjoy the comicalities of Johnny Booker and the admirable dancing of the little Baileys. The entertainment was highly amusing and applauded to the echo.

REMOVAL.—The business rooms of the Milwaukee Mutual Insurance Company have just been removed from their old quarters on East Water st, to the rooms on the second floor of Martin's Block recently occupied by the Young Men's Association.

MICHIGAN CENTRAL RAIL ROAD.—The Chicago papers state that the work on this road has been resumed and will be pushed ahead with vigor.—The rails are now laid to within 22 miles of Chicago, and with favorable weather the line will be finished by the 1st of May next.

☞ The "Kossuth Hat" made its appearance in our streets yesterday. The editor of the Wisconsin set the fashion, sporting the hat, feather and all. They are for sale at "Uncle Ben's."

CIRCUIT COURT.

Trial of Wm. Ratcliffe, for the Murder of David Ross.

SECOND DAY.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, FEB. 25th.

After some delay, Charles H. Learned, farmer, from Oak Creek, was called, accepted and sworn. Charles Persons, next called, was challenged by prisoner's counsel. James McCready, from town of Lake, was next called, accepted and sworn. Wm. Shew was next called, and excused by prisoner's counsel. Luther Rawson was next called, and also excused by counsel for the prisoner. John Lascelle, next called, was requested to stand aside by counsel for prisoner. Abram Rorick, next called, was challenged by prosecution. There being no other persons present, the parties consented that Luther Rawson should sit, in order that the trial should proceed. The jury is the most intelligent and substantial looking one we have ever seen in any of our Courts.

Their names are as follows:

Addison A. Rose,
William Smith,
Oliver Damon,
Harvey N. Woodworth,
Alanson Sweet,
Hiram Mabbit,
William K. Wilson,
John Tobin,
David Lemonier,
Charles H. Learned,
George McCready,
Luther Rawson.

Two German interpreters were here appointed—Mr. John Tesch and Charles Geisberg.

The case was then eloquently opened on the part of the prosecution, by Mr. Butler, District Attorney.

The importance of the case was commented upon, and the necessity of solemn attention and deliberation enforced. The charge against the prisoner was one of the weightiest known to criminal law—that of malicious, cold-blooded murder—and such a scrutiny of the evidence was necessary, as would not only save inviolate the rights of the prisoner, but vindicate the supremacy of the law. There was no dispute but that a murder had been committed, and that no eye but that of the all-seeing God was witness to it. But we cannot do justice to the remarks of the District Attorney, and will not attempt to follow him. The circumstances relied upon as proving the guilt of the prisoner, are substantially as follows:—That for a few days previous to the murder of Ross, prisoner was constantly seeking and inquiring for him—that he was familiar with Ross's business, and interested himself in the collection of Ross's debts—that Ross was to leave the city on Monday next succeeding the night of the murder, and that on that night, prisoner was very anxious to find Ross—that prisoner's mind was troubled, and his conduct strange and mysterious—that he was well aware that Ross had money, and that this fact seemed to be haunting his mind, as he spoke of it often, with no apparent occasion for doing so—that prisoner's conduct at the time of arrest, was such as to create a strong presumption of guilt—that a black satin Vest which prisoner wore on the Sabbath when the murder occurred, was stained in several places with blood—and that prisoner's boots, worn on that day, fit exactly into the tracks made on leaving the body of Ross.

The interpreters were sworn to make correct translations of the evidence.

The first witness called was Jacob Schaedlauer, who, being duly sworn, testified that he did not know defendant—resided on the Chicago road, on the Kinnekinick creek—recollects the death of David Ross—it occurred between the hours of 9 and 10 at night, on what day witness did not know—heard of it the morning after. Knows the place where the murder was committed. It is on Elizabeth street, Walker's Point, of this city—was coming down Elizabeth street, and heard two men fighting, about 36 paces from cor. of 8 st, intersecting Elizabeth street. It was in the night, and pretty dark—did not see the men distinctly. After a little while they fell to the ground—saw nothing further—was afraid, and went home. At first, witness started from the house of his brother-in-law, with two dogs, and the first thing he heard was one of his dogs barking at a man—his brother-in-law lived two streets from where the dog barked; when witness left his brother-in-law's, and got two blocks from his house, witness was walking in the middle of the street, and the man on the sidewalk; the dogs barked at the man on the sidewalk; walked along to the corner before spoken of, when the dogs again barked in the direction where the men were fighting; witness saw two men having hold of each other, and both fell to the ground; though they were drunken people; recalled his dogs, and went his way; that's all witness saw; heard something knocking, but could not tell what it was; the direction of the knocking was where he saw the men; the noise sounded as though two men were fighting, and struck each other forcibly on the head; thinks he heard groans, but could not be positive; Elizabeth street runs east & west, he was going East on Elizabeth St. toward Chicago road; men fighting were north from where he stopped on the corner; the man walking on the sidewalk, at whom the dogs barked, was going in the same direction with himself; left the man rapidly, and could not tell where he went; the man on the sidewalk, when he first saw him, was four streets back from the corner, walked rapidly, and left man behind him; this, witness thinks, was in the spring of last year, on Sunday evening.

Cross Examination.—Witness heard the next morning that a murder had been committed between 9 and 10 o'clock in the evening. It was between 9 and 10 o'clock when witness left his brother-in-law's house—there were only five streets to where he stopped, and he walked rapidly. It was not a great while before he got to the corner—it was about 5 minutes after he left his brother-in-law's when he saw a man on the side walk—does not know who the man was, as it was too dark to see him—did not speak to him; was about 20 feet from him; did not see the man when he first came out of the house; man was ahead of him, but overtook and passed him. When he passed the man they were three streets back from the corner; man did not come up to him when he stopped on the corner; did not see him again; cannot say how long it was after he passed man before he reached corner—thinks it was from 7 to 10 minutes; did not stop, but walked right along; saw the men who were fighting, as soon as he reached the corner. Judging from gait of the man when witness saw him, he could not have reached the place where the men were fighting by taking any other course, by the time the witness got to the corner; is familiar with streets and localities in that neighborhood. To the West of the street, where the men were fighting, there were no graded streets but Brown street. (The street upon which the fight took place is supposed to be Grove Street)—is sure that it was pretty dark; did not see any moon; it was partly clear; some clouds in the sky; remained at the corner; only just long enough to see a couple of men fighting there, and for fear of getting into trouble walked on—walked away rapidly; there appeared to be only two men in the fight, but as it was dark could not be positive; did not hear anything said by the men; could not see how they were dressed, or what their size was; went up a steep hill before coming to Chicago road, and went down the hill on Chicago road; after he left corner did not speak to any person, or give any alarm; did not stop to listen; first mentioned what he had seen when he got home; heard of Ross' death about 10 o'clock next morning from a hired man, who had been to the City and returned—had had no acquaintance with Ross; in the afternoon of Sunday was at home; in the evening about the hour of twilight went to his brother-in-law's and remained there until witness started for home; the next Sunday following witness went to the spot where he had seen the men fighting; did not know whether the man on the side-walk was large or small.

Adam Hoffman, the witness, sworn called by prosecution, being duly sworn, testified as follows:—

He lived in the Fifth Ward for three years, on a street that is not used; knew David Ross two months, and worked with him at Maurer's; saw him a week before his death, and did not see him afterwards, until he found him dead; witness found him in May of last year, coming from town and was walking on Grove-st. in the middle of the street. John Maurer was with him on the right side; Maurer found a hat, and took it up; witness told Maurer he knew the hat: witness also told Maurer, the owner of the hat must be drunk, and we must look for him. They saw a man with a white shirt, and the shirt stuck out; witness took him by the shoulders to raise him up, and felt wet on his hands; the man was lying on his face; witness looked at his hand, and saw that it was red; witness told Maurer that the man was pretty near killed he guessed; witness ran into Mr. Reeve's house, and told him there was a man out there that was murdered, and he boards with you.

Mr. Reeve was in bed, got up, lit a candle and went out; witness turned the man over on his back; the man's name was Ross; he died about two minutes after witness turned him over; witness knew the hat from the crape that was on it; there was blood on the ground where Ross was lying; it was about 18 steps from Grove-st., and 36 from Elizabeth-st; Reeves' house was across Elizabeth-st. on the corner; there was blood all over; found some between the street and the place where the body was lying; there was a good deal of blood on the sidewalk, and scattered all the way from the sedewalk to the body; found nothing in the street but the blood and the hat; Maurer stood by the body when witness went to Reves' house; Maurer came to the house and called witness and Reves out and said the man would die; witness felt a hole in the back of the head of Ross, and also some on the side; don't know which side, and don't know how many holes, more folks came and took away the body; Ross did not speak, but gasped several times.

Cross Examination.—Witness left home about 4 o'clock in the afternoon; his house is about 4 blocks from where he found Ross; He went directly from his house to the Napoleon house on Huron street; John Maurer went with Witness, stayed at the Napoleon house until a little after 9 o'clock; don't know how far it is from Napoleon house to the place where Witness found Ross. Witness did not stop on the way, don't know how long he was going; Could not keep time in his head when it was no dark; It was a pleasant evening; a little clear and a little cloudy; Don't know whether there was a moon or not; is not accustomed to look at the moon; could see a man twenty steps off, but not so as to tell who he was; the hat was on the east side of the street. Witness told Maurer that it was Ross's hat; we both saw the body at the same time; we heard him gasp before we got to the body when we were about 10 feet from it. We stayed by the body 2 or 3 minutes before witness went to the house.—It was about 10 minutes before witness came back from house; don't know how long before witness and Reeve went out of house; Maurer came to house; when they got back to the body it was lying in the same position as when witness left it—they had a glass lantern; Ross lived two or three minutes after witness came back from house, and turned him over; Maurer wouldn't help witness raise up the body; Reeve went for some of the neighbors, and came back, and the body was taken into the house about 15 minutes after; don't know what time it was when body was taken into the house; the first words witness spoke to Maurer when the body was found, was, that he knew the hat, and somebody must be drunk; witness had drank two glasses of beer at the Napoleon House; drank several times; witnesses business is working in a planing machine, and he is 27 years old.

Direct Examination resumed.—Witness was sober when he left Napoleon House; Reeve works with me at Gillett's shop.

John Maurer, the next witness called for the prosecution, being duly sworn, deposed, that he lived in the Fifth Ward in May last; witness knew Ross by sight; recollects when he and Hoffman were at the Napoleon House together; it was on Saturday; they left the Napoleon House about 9 o'clock, and went directly home; nothing happened on the way, until we came to Grove street, where we found a hat; we found the body of a man we supposed to be drunk. The testimony of this witness as to what took place subsequently, was merely corroborative of the testimony of Hoffman, with the exception of a few particulars. Witness did not see any wounds on the body until it was taken into the house and washed, but he supposed when the body was found, that there must be some wound on the head, as the hair was clotted with blood; a pair of a belt, with three gold pieces in it, and a gold watch, was found on the body; witness did not know whose body it was; when he went to the house to call Reeve and Hoffman, he was gone about five minutes; went immediately to the house, and returned immediately to the body.

Cross-Examined.—Witness did not see Hoffman look at the watch at the Napoleon House; witness was much engaged in conversing with an interesting German lady; witness drank one glass of beer; walked from Napoleon House at the ordinary pace, and should think it would take 15 minutes to walk to the place where the body was found; knew Ross by sight, but did not recognize him when he was found, as it was dark, and his face was covered with blood; moon was in the first quarter, and witness does not know about that time; they went to the trucks, and don't recollect whether any were found near the body, or not; don't recollect whether they went to the marsh or not; couldn't tell whether there were any marks of a scuffle about the place where the body was found, as a number of persons came up after a while, and all made tracks; a spot was found some distance off, where there was blood; witness did not hear any dogs barking but his own, nor any footsteps, nor any hallooing, when they approached Grove st.; the body was found northwest from the hut.

Direct Examination resumed.—Witness found a three-cornered hole in the hat, after the lantern came: the hat was of the usual size, and had a crape around it, tied in a knot on the back side; the hat was taken into Reeve's house, but witness does not know what became of it.

Cross-Examined.—Witness did not put his finger through the hole in the hat; it could be seen by merely looking at it, that the hole was a three-cornered one.

Witness Hoffman recalled.—Did not notice any brush or hole in the hat; did not look at it closely; did not see any hole made in the hat after it was found.

Thaddeus Reeve was next called for the prosecution, and deposed that in May last he lived in the 5th Ward, on the corner of Grove and Elizabeth streets; there is vacant land between witnesses house and Elizabeth st about twenty-five feet in width; knew David Ross, first saw him in November 1850: Ross boarded with witness; commenced boarding with him on the 1st of March and continued with him until the 4th of May 1851; witness last; saw Ross alone on the 4th of last May; he was on the west side of Grove street, and the north side of Elizabeth street; It was near 10 o'clock in the evening; Mr. Hoffman came to witness's door and told him that Ross was killed; witness went to the place where he saw Ross and found him lying on the ground with his face down and was breathing; his head appeared to be badly mutilated on the left side, he continued on his face while witness was there, which was about a minute, witness went to his house, and then to Mr. Sexton's: from there to Mr. Weeks; when the witnes returned to the body, it was on its back; about 15 minutes had elapsed; Ross has then dead; Mr. Hoffman, Mr. Sexton, Mr. Watt and some others, were there when the witness returned: witness had a lantern when he first saw the body, and held it to the head and found it fractured and bleeding on the left side; made no subsequent examination of the body. The body was carried to witness' house: saw it brought to the house; it was laid on a board stripped, and washed and a clean shirt put on: there was a bruise near the eye; the body was removed to the burying ground on 6th day of May; a coroners inquest was held on the 5th in witness' house by Squire Parsons; witness saw the body on that day and the head was in the same state as the day before; there were four or five wounds on the head; an examination for boot tracks and blood was made when the body was found; witness assisted in the examination; tracks were found in Grove-st; blood was also found in several places; did not look in the marsh for tracks that night; did so the next morning with another person; discovered tracks in the marsh, one about three feet from the body; the tracks were in a Northwesterly direction from the body; followed the tracks about six feet from the body; did not compar any boots with these tracks at that time, and dont recollect seeing any compared, afterwards; witness looked at same tracks afterwards; they were nearly 3 feet apart; about an inch deep; the soil was soft and wet and grassed over; could see similar tracks for about a rod; on the day following Ross' death, some of the tracks were displaced; witness saw Ross' hat; it was carried to the house; saw a hole in the hat; it was small and a three cornered hole; Ross' brother and brother-in-law took the hat away from witness' house in about 2 or 3 weeks; witness does not know Ratcliffe; first saw him on Sunday the 4th of May 1851, about 6 o'clock in the evening at his house, he inquired for Mr. Ross; he said he wanted to send a letter by him to Cincinnati; he said he wanted to see Ross and must see him before he left; he had been looking for him all day, and it would take a smart chip to find him: he said Ross was a clever fellow and inquired if certain boxes in the house belonged to him, and whether he was going to take them with him; that he had better send them by Express, as he was better acquainted with that route than Ross was; he spoke of Mr. Ross' joking with a girl somewhere up town, and said that he had better let her alone as she was an "old cuf"; one of the boxes was a dry goods box—they were nailed up; witness had never seen prisoner before and did not know what his natural peculiarities were; there was nothing peculiar in his manner, except a great anxiety to see Mr. Ross before he left; do not know whether Ratcliffe was aware that Ross was going to leave the next morning or not.

Witness does not recollect the color of prisoner's dress on that day; he was neatly dressed; cannot describe his clothing: Ross was in business with Julius Wojler when witness first knew him; Ross, on the day of his death, had money; he had had a part of it, and for any thing that witness knew, all of it, ever since he boarded with witness; before witness left the house that day, he brought out his money belt, and took the money from it, and counted it; witness saw him count it; the principal part of it was gold; American coin—of the denominations of $5's, $10's, and $20's; witness could not tell what amount of money there was; there were several $20 pieces; one pile, and part of another, and about five in a pile; there were two piles of $10 pieces.

District Attorney here asked for the number of pieces in each pile, and as the witness could only answer from mere opinion, the prisoner's counsel objected, objection overruled and exception taken.

Witness answered that there were 2 or 10 pieces in a pile; there were two piles of $5 pieces and 4 or 5 in each pile; there was some silver but no large amount of it; there were several bank bills; can't say how many; witness does not know when Ross got the belt; first saw it on the fourth day of May; Ross kept part of the money and for all witness knows all of it at witness' house; when Ross came to witness' house to board, he gave witness' wife $180 to be kept for him until he should call for it; don't know of Ross keeping any other money than this in the house; Ross went back into the bed room with the money; when he came out he went into the wash room to wash himself; Ross on the day of his death was in the witness' house from morning until 2 or 3 o'clock in the afternoon; he then left the house; witness cannot say where he went or in what direction; he did not return; witness did not see Ross after he left until he found him lying in the road; his things were all in readiness to leave the next morning.

The District Attorney asked witness if, from what Ross said, he knew by what conveyance he was going to leave on his journey.

Prisoner's counsel objected, objection overruled and exception taken.

Witness answered, that he had engaged a conveyance to convey Ross to the boat, connected with the Michigan Central Railroad; the money belt of Ross was made of leather, and made to fasten around the body, with a buckle. There were several compartments in the belt; a part of the belt was found on the body of Ross; about one-fifth of it, not the part with the buckle on; witness was present when belt was taken from person of Ross: there were $15 in gold in the belt; witness couldn't say how the belt had been severed: it appeared to have been cut: a piece of belt was here shown to witness, who said it looked like the same piece found on the body: there was some red flannel on it; witness never saw the remainder of the belt after Ross put the money in it; witness did not know on what part of the body the piece of belt was found; prisoner, when he went away from witness's house, said he would go towards the Post-Office, and perhaps should meet him; Ross had told witness that he should go to the Post Office at 5 o'clock, and should come directly home; and witness told this to Radcliffe: no one was present but witness and family, when Radcliffe was at his house.

The cross examination of this witness was laid over till 2 o'clock to-morrow afternoon, in order that he might attend to the burial of his child.

The Court adjourned till 8 A. M. to-morrow.

A GENERAL SUSPENSION.—All the Madison Dailies, except the Democrat, suspended operations during the brief Legislative recess. At least we infer as much from the fact that none but the Democrat have come to hand for some days past. The Democrat thus describes the melancholy condition of things at Madison during the temporary "eclipse" of the body which gives warmth and light and vitality to the Capital:

Dullness reigns supreme at the Capitol. The legislature we do not miss so much as the more brilliant stars which revolved around that opaque body. Bill Brown has gone to run his saws upon the wooden heads assembled at Milwaukee; Truman Wright has taken his machines to another market; Hyatt Smith and Ike Woodle have betaken themselves to the mill of the Lord to pray for all God's creation, to watch and wait for Mr. Walker. The bankers toast their shins by the bar-room stoves, and click their unbought checks in moody silence. The saloons are a solitude, and billiard-tables draped in melancholy inactivity.—The theatre is deserted, the sons of Thespis having left the boards for the paws. Eight sooty editors are beating their brains in vain for an idea, and the whole active business of the town furnishes not a single item. We pray for a speedy return of our friends, and a resumption of life as bad as it is during a legislative session.

FIRE IN THE COUNTRY.—We learn that the store of Messrs. H. and A. WELL, at Newbung, Washington County, was destroyed by fire on Tuesday last. Loss some $3000 on which there was a partial insurance.

On Saturday evening last the barn of Mr. ALLY, in this county, 9 miles from town, was set on fire and burnt to the ground. A boy, suspected of the crime, has been arrested and is now in confinement.

STEAMBOAT COMING.—The Steamer Pacific left Chicago for this port at 8 o'clock, yesterday morning, but finding the Lake very rough and a stiff Norwester blowing, put back after coming out some four or five miles. She will try again this morning, and if the weather is fair will be along here by 3 or 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

CAPITAL PUNISHMENT IN RHODE ISLAND.—The Governor of Rhode Island has signed the bill abolishing capital punishment in that State and it is now a law.

AFFLICTING CASUALTY.—A most heart-rending accident occurred yesterday afternoon, near Mr. Ludby's residence, on the North Branch A Mrs. McEwen, accompanied by her little son, six years of age, had gone to the river for a pail of water.—The mother returned, leaving the little boy, who was playing with his dog, to follow at his leisure. The dog, in his gambols, ran out upon the ice, and the boy, in attempting to follow, broke through. The mother's attention being aroused by his screaming, she at once, with that affection for her offspring which only a mother can feel, regardless of danger, rushed into the water and seized her drowning child. Before assistance could be obtained, mother and child, locked in each other's embrace, had passed to the land of shadows.—Chicago Tribune.

FIRST DELEGATE TO WHIG NATIONAL CONVENTION.—The first District Convention for the choice of a Delegate to the next Whig National Convention (if such there be) was held at Batavia a few days since. C. E. Thompson, Editor of the "Le Roy Gazette," was chosen Delegate, with Hon. J. A. McElwain (Senator) as Substitute. The Convention was for Scott all over, and so resolved. The District (Genesee, Wyoming and Allegany Counties) is one of the largest in the State, gave 1,700 Whig majority last fall, and can give 2,500 in a Presidential contest. It adjoins Erie County, the home of Messrs. Fillmore, Hall and Havens. Mr. Thompson, the Delegate, is a Taylor Postmaster relieved from duty by the firm just named.—N. Y. Tribune.

A CURE FOR BRONCHITIS.

THOSE who suffer from Bronchial affections, connected with a weakened and deranged state of the stomach, especially if accompanied with acidity, which is not unfrequently the cause of the disease, are referred to the following extract from the St. Louis Herald:

DERANGED STATE BITTERS.—Among our advertisements are some of the most approved patent medicines, one of which, the Oxygenated Bitters, we have tried. While under medical treatment by a physician of this city, for a distressing bronchitis of two years' standing, we were induced to try these Bitters, suspecting they were composed of the very thing which he had prescribed. The effect was immediate and permanent, and the cure soon completed. Wherever a bronchitis is connected with a deranged stomach, we have no doubt this medicine will give great relief. The patentee has the merit of rare honesty, when he tells us to stop taking the medicine, if not benefited by two or three bottles.

VOLUME VIII. MILWAUKEE DAILY SENTINEL. NEW SERIES.

DAILY SENTINEL.

THE MAINE LIQUOR LAW.

We again quote, from the New York Courier & Enquirer, some strong arguments and considerations against the enactment of the Maine Liquor Law by the Legislature of that State. We copy them as, in a great degree, applicable to our own State, and devote so much space to the question because we believe that the proposed law is wrong and objectionable in principle, unequal and oppressive in practice, and that its enactment here would injure the very cause it is designed to serve, and inflict a serious blow upon the interests and prosperity of our City and State.

The advocates of the Maine Liquor Law cite Chief Justice Taney as having in the course of his judicial career, given an opinion favorable to the provisions of a similar measure. But Chief Justice Taney never hazarded his judgement in declaring constitutional this Law, as literally defined, now in operation in Maine. The Federal Constitution expressly provides that "the right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated; and no warrants shall issue but upon probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the persons and things to be seized." The Law of Maine requires no such oath or affirmation. On the contrary, it is made the duty of the mayor, alderman, or other municipal officer of the town, to proceed upon his mission of search and seizure at the instigation of malice or suspicion, and without any legal obligations or restraints whatever.

The Federal Constitution stipulates "that private property shall not be taken for public use without just compensation," nor shall a criminal "be deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law." The Law of Maine enacts that "no action of any kind shall be maintained in any court in this state, for the recovery or possession of intoxicating or spirituous liquor or the value thereof." These palpable contraventions of Federal rights cannot be overlooked; but whether the advocates of the Maine Law recognised the force of the Constitution is another question.

But again: the Constitution declares that "in all criminal prosecutions"—and the Law of Maine makes the selling of liquor a crime—"the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial, by an impartial Jury of the State and District within which the crime shall have been committed." The Law of Maine guarantees to the criminal no such right as an impartial jury trial, or any jury trial, except in cases of appeal. The criminal is first tried by the Judge or Magistrate, who is arbiter of his guilt of innocence, and on this magisterial decision, the "life, liberty, and property" of the defendant depends. This is a direct infringement of the Constitution; but the act goes farther, and excludes from the jury on appeal cases, all persons engaged in the traffic of liquor, and even those who are under the ban of suspicion. How then can a jury be impartial, which is made up entirely of exparte elements?

The Federal Constitution further stipulates, that excessive bail shall not be required, nor excessive fines imposed, nor shall cruel and unusual punishments be inflicted. The law of Maine makes the servant of a seller of liquor equally culpable with the master, no matter under what circumstances his conduct comes in conflict with the act. He has no appeal, neither has he redress. He cannot have his case disposed of by a jury. Ignorance of the risks and penalties by which his suit is surrounded. He is met at every step by a fine, the threat of imprisonment, or ultimate certainty of a prejudiced panel against his appeal; and for these reasons, one servant out of ten thousand could scarcely succeed in obtaining the necessary bail and collateral securities required by the act. In effect, the Law, on the order of the Judge or Magistrate, at once consigns him to a dungeon—and there he endures a two months' incarceration by the stroke of a pen, for an act of which morally he may be as innocent as the Judge who revokes his liberty. We submit whether these are not hardships that grate harshly on our convictions of right, and which violate the guaranties contained in the section of the Constitution we have last quoted.

But we have not space to devote to a recapitulation of these features in the law. They abound from the enacting clause to the closing section, and in some instances seem less reconcilable with the stipulations of the Federal Constitution than the passages we have particularly identified. We repeat, however, that the paramount question with the Legislature is its expediency. This Law, in all its sweeping, and prohibitory, and unjust details, may answer for Maine; but were it ever so constitutional, it would not do as a practical measure for New York. Homely facts are applicable to our argument. In Maine, perhaps a gallon of liquor is not used in a week, but what is of local or domestic manufacture. In New York a gallon of a domestic article, except a fine kind of Monongahela, is not used in a twelvemonth. In Maine, where the vilest spirits is an article of frightful consumption, and where neither agricultural, manufacturing, nor commercial interests are subverted, but rather benefited, such a law is essentially a measure to demand our full consideration.

But let us look about us, and inquire what assimilations of taste, interests, or expediency there are between the States. Grain to the value of $6,000,000 per annum is brought into our commonwealth for manufacture; and when manufactured, the liquor is sent abroad in part payment for the foreign goods which Maine consumes. Our Canals and Rail Roads were constructed for a purpose; they bear to our market the products of the West, and this grain is an important item in this aggregate. This is not all. Of the traffic, amounting to $60,000,000, that concentrates at tide-water at Albany in the course of a year, from the interior, or, it is estimated that forty millions in value comes forward as an equivalent for merchandize purchased in this city, and of this $40,000,000, over $11,000,000 annually are paid for liquors sent forward not in original packages. Shall our city be deprived of this traffic? Shall our Rail Roads and Canals lose the tolls on this immense trade? Shall our brewing establishments and distilleries be closed? Shall all the interests financial, agricultural and commercial—which the bill threatens to take from us, be surrendered without a struggle? And for what purpose? What are the complaints of Maine, that we should imitate her example?

The Law may prevent a merchant from selling a barrel of brandy to a Western merchant, provided it has been imported in a hogshead. The Law may break up tippling houses, and the Law may rob the Commonwealth of millions of revenue—may divert trade to other channels—may deprive our internal improvements of a moiety of their tolls. But the Law cannot prevent the habit of bibbing, with all its restrictions. We regard the measure as a bid to increased importation of foreign liquors; for every citizen who now keeps a private vault, replenished from the stores of the wholesale dealer, will become an importer himself. His friends, who take a social glass with him at the saloon or restaurant, will crowd to his residence; and the young, by these in-door example around the fireside, will witness spectacles, and imbibe habits, they may remember to their sorrow. We trust our legislature will pause before they enact this Law. It is fraught with evil. It can accomplish no good for a community so constituted and socially organized as our own. If we must have a Law, let it be such one as will vindicate its efficacy without entailing misfortunes immensely worse.

Great Flood at Bennington—One life lost—and a large amount of Property destroyed.

The following letter will explain itself. It was hastily written at the scene of the catastrophe, and gives all the particulars that could be gathered in the excitement and confusion at the time prevailing.

Bennington, Vt., Feb. 19.

FRIEND DAVIS:—

Dear Sir—The business portion of North Bennington is in ruins.

The great Dam above the Rail Road and constituted by the superstructure, gave away yesterday about 2 o'clock, P. M., notwithstanding the most strenuous efforts of the citizents to stop the holes as they appeared. I should think the water was within four feet of the top. Hiram Richardson's house, barn and horses, David Richardson & Jones, Batting factory, next the stream, are gone and all the contents Their Woollen factory is so shattered as to be worthless. Mrs. Christy's dwelling, Mr. Ball's Blacksmith shop, D. McIntyre's dwelling, the barn opposite the Academy, with all their contents are destroyed.

Mr. Eeee' Factory and Store stand, but the water rose higher than the weare shop.

The house below, occupied by Mr. Cameron, is gone. The new house next the Factory went down whole—a child of Wm. R. Dutcher in one tenement, and Mrs. Cain recently from Adams, in the other. The house soon went to pieces, and Mrs. Cain by a wonderful providence, was enabled to cling to floating timbers that seemed to be thrown in her way, and was saved three-fourths of a mile below, near the Irish Corners. The body of the child was recovered; its foot caught in a fence. No other lives are known to be lost. So sudden was the flood that the people had only time to run out of their houses.

Every dam and bridge is gone.

The Grist mill stands, and probably saved Mr Bang's Square shop. It is said there was $5,000 worth of Squares in the upper story, they were not wet; the flood trimmed the under story.

Several other houses and their furniture were much damaged, which I have not time now to mention.

The floor of Messrs. Hawks & Company's store was covered, and the room containing their Safe, filled.

Yours truly,

ISAIAH MATTISON.

OUR RAIL ROAD TO THE MISSISSIPPI.

The Potosi Republican copies our remarks in reply to its article expressing great doubts as to whether the Milwaukee & Mississippi R. R. Company intended to push their road through to the banks of the Great River, and appends thereto the following comments to which we transfer to our columns, that the friends of the enterprize in the Eastern portions of the State may see what is said, and expected of them at the West, and what the West proposes and is able to perform towards securing the success of the work:

The above assurance, coming from a creditable and well-informed source, we presume is honest, and shall receive it as the real intention of the M. & M. R. R. Co., until their action convinces to the contrary. It does not comport, however, with the language of Byron Kilbourn, late President of the Company, in a communication published a few weeks since, by the Sentinel, wherein he refers to the object of the Company, as a by-gone conclusion, to push the road as fast and directly as possible to the Wisconsin river. He speaks of it as a matter already decided upon, and the citizens of Grant county inferred no more than his language conveyed. Were aware that Mr. Kilbourn has been superceded by Mr. Catlin, and the affairs and plans of the company have fallen into new hands, who may differ materially from the old Board in their views and designs; but, the people of the West, before they invest any more time or money in pulling, want positive assurance that they have hold of the right rope. And if Milwaukee don't know it, we do, that Grant county has the real vim to make as long a pull and strong a pull as any other county in the State. Unlike many of her neighbors, she is not burthened and groaning under debt and heavy taxation; neither is the individual property of her citizens mortgaged for double the amount of its value. With few exceptions, every man is even with the world, and some have a "pile" in store for "a wet day." We say this not in boasting, but to give publicity to a truth of which some of our Eastern friends appear to be ignorant.

Land speculators, on the Lake shore, have misrepresented the West to prevent emigration from passing beyond their grasp, and politicians have done the same to suit their superficiarment of public offices, until those living East of the Capital have come to consider us a mere province dependent upon the good will of our Lake friends for all mercies. It is a mistake which demands correction, and which the lapse of a few years will correct. In the true resources of means and wealth, Western Wisconsin is not surpassed by any country on the face of earth. Its mines of intermingle value, a soil to produce all the necessaries of life for any population that may cover it, and water-powers sufficient to propel the machinery of whole New England States, renders it peculiarly attractive to the man of business in whatever trade or occupation he may wish to engage. Bordered, too, by the largest and most extended navigable river on the globe, in point of location it yields superiority to none. And when Art has accomplished the improvements which Nature has left her to do, we would not exchange her condition for that of any other country whether East or West, North or South. The Milwaukee Railroad Company, therefore, in adhering to the terms of their Charter and their first resolution, to locate the western terminus of their road within the limits of Grant County, do no more than consult their own business. We trust a survey to the Mississippi will satisfy them on this point, and that thereafter both sections of the State may act together in speedily accomplishing this great thoroughfare of trade.

FROM UTAH.

We have intelligence from the Great Salt Lake city, to the 15th of November. The Deseret News, of that date, gives an account of the state of affairs in the various settlements of Utah.—Everything is stated as prosperous. The companies of colonists who prepared, in October, to settle at Salt Lake, and to found Fillmore city, in Millard Co., had arrived at their destinations, and commenced operations. The company destined to Rio Virgin, led by Elder John D. Lee, had not been heard from, but were supposed, from previous accounts, to have arrived at their destination. A small company had gone twenty miles north of Weber, commenced a fort, and were preparing for farming and lumbering.

The crops are generally stated as good. Wheat is cheaper than ever before known in the mountains. The public works are progressing. The foundation of the Tabernacle is laid, but there had been some delay for timbers, which were now coming in. The railroad is progressing; timber ginding is completed to a considerable extent; nothing had been done on it for some time, until recently.

The mail due from Sacramento on the last of October, had not been heard from, though a small party which left Carson Valley the 10th October arrived early in Nov.

The Mormons are devoting a good deal of attention to their schools. They have established what they term a "Parent School," in which persons of both sexes are to be qualified for teachers in the common schools, or to improve themselves in the higher branches of school education. In this school, astronomy, algebra, and the various mathematical studies, will be taught by a professor of those branches.

At the October term of the First District Court of the United States for the Territory of Utah, Howard Egan was tried and acquitted of the charge of murder, in killing James Monroe, who, it seems, had seduced his wife. The case was prosecuted by U. S. Attorney Seth M. Blair.—George A. Smith, Counsel for the prisoner, urged that his client had acted in accordance with the "Mountain Law," which condemns the seducer to death by the hand of the nearest relative of the victim. This was the established principle of justice in the mountains; and if the prisoner had not killed the seducer, he would clearly have been accessory to the crime.

Judge Snow, in charging the Jury, remarked that if crime had been committed, it should be avenged only in due course of law; that no one has a right to punish a person for a real or fancied wrong, except with authority of law; that no one ought to be punished, even for an act worthy of punishment, except it be made penal by law, &c. The Jury rendered a verdict of not guilty.

The News says, in reference to the plea of the prisoner's counsel and the charge of the Judge: "We think they will sufficiently explain the nature of the trial, without comment, and prove a sufficient warning to all unchaste reprobates, that they are not wanted in our community; and all editors who have been publishing that 'the Mormons are a set of lawless debauchees and prostitutes,' may do well to publish said plea, charge, and verdict, for the special benefit of their readers; for it may be the means of saving some of them from a similar fate."

An editorial article in the News expresses the conviction that one Pedro Leon, who holds a license to trade with Utah Indians, and signed by Jas. S. Calhoun, Superintendent of Indian Affairs, is engaged in purchasing and supplying arms and ammunition to the Navajoe Indians, who are at war with the U. S.

Fire at Hudson, Michigan.

SUDDEN DEATH.—Basil Luke De Avron, died suddenly, yesterday afternoon, at the boarding house of Mrs. O'Brien, near the Lake House ferry. He was apparently in good health at 11 o'clock, A. M., and at 4, P. M. had ceased to live. It is thought he died of appoplexy.

The deceased came to this city in December last. He represented himself as a political refugee, from Ireland although a Frenchman by birth, and of a noble family. He was identified with Smith O'Brien, Meagher, and others, in the attempt at revolution in Ireland, and was compelled to flee for his life on the disastrous termination of the contest. He was the owner of large estates in Ireland, which of course were confiscated by the government, leaving him, in his exile, entirely penniless.

De Avron was about thirty years of age. He leaves a wife and children who are supposed to be somewhere in Massachusetts—Chicago Tribune.

WHEN WILL WONDERS CEASE?—Hon. W. A Richardson, of Illinois has been nominated for the Presidency by the Democrats of Duplin county North Carolina. They have also nominated Judge Robert Strange, of their own State, for Vice President. Judge Douglas must be stirring his "mighty small legs," or Richardson will be after him. What a race it will be!—St. Louis Rep.

☞ Bob, what's steam? "Boiling water."—That's right—compare it. "Positive boil, comparative boiler, superlative burst."

PRESSED, FIRE-PROOF TILING.

CERTIFICATES OF RECOMMENDATION.

BY the present, I attest my entire satisfaction with the roof of my house, covered with the pressed, fire-proof Tile, invented by Mr. Gressler having found them perfectly resist the severest changes of heat and intence cold. I therefore take occasion to recommend said roof covering to every house-builder, inviting them to satisfy themselves by ocular proof. ENNO MEYER.
Druggist, 371 W. Water-st., 2nd ward.

Milwaukee, Feb. 3, 1852.

The above I found true in every respect, as to the roof of my house, covered with the same tile, invented by Mr. Gressler. AUGUST BRUNS.
Brewer, Chestnut-st., 2nd ward.

The undersigned, having carefully examined the pressed roofing Tiles, invented by Mr. Gressler, have found them perfectly answering the purpose intended. Their practical and scientious construction recommend this kind of Tile, and our opinion is, that a roof covered with it will be a safe covering, but above all for its durability. The eldest and cleanest not only exclude the entering of snow or rain-water, but, by their form and weight, they resist the strongest winds; they give to the single Tile as well as to the whole covering an absolutely immovable position and an intimate connection. Besides this, we consider the quality of burning the Tiles, deprives them of the injurious tendency to absorb water, making them in this way durable; and joining to the above another very important feature, that of repairing. The undersigned therefore consider themselves fully justified in recommending to the building community the above roofing Tile as an excellent and valuable material.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR 1852.

AS the season for emigration approaches, we beg to acquaint our friends and the public with our Arrangements for the year 1852, and would inform them, that with an increase of business—for which we are grateful—we are placed in possession of greater facilities for conducting the Emigration and Foreign Exchange Business than any other House in the World, and for which—in a great measure—we have to thank a discerning public for their continued patronage.

PATENT MEDICINES,

Dr. Trasks Magnetic Ointment,
CAN now be obtained in this city of S. JOHNSON, Jr., and H. Bosworth & Sons, and of one or more Druggists or Merchants in most of the cities or villages of the West. The great and increasing popularity of this remedy is mainly attributable to its controlling power over acute inflammation and nervous irritation. From the best of evidence in our possession, from Physicians, of the best standing, who have prescribed it, and from others who have been healed by it, we are satisfied that it will cure in some cases where no other known remedy will do it. This it has appeared to do in numerous cases of Chronic Sore Eyes and partial blindness, where the most eminent medical treatment had failed: For inflammatory Rheumatism Burns, Freezes, Ulcerated sores, Scalr head, or for relief from a sudden stoppage of the pores of the skin by colds or fevers, a thorough trial will establish its claims to the confidence of the public. Our agents are supplied with circulars containing interesting details of its happy effects in many extreme cases.

☞ The attention of Physicians is respectfully called to a rigid scrutiny of the merits of this article.
